EVENT SELECTION STRATEGY

For the first World Cup of the season in Chiang Mai, Thailand, USA Cycling will implement a conservative and targeted selection strategy focused on medal potential. Given the significant travel demands and expense associated with competing in Thailand, USA Cycling will prioritize the selection of a smaller team comprised exclusively of athletes assessed as medal capable.

Selection will be limited to athletes who have demonstrated clear medal potential through recent international performances, including results at the most recent World Championships and other comparable elite-level competitions. Discretionary selection will not be extended beyond athletes who meet this medal-capable standard. This approach ensures resources are strategically allocated while maximizing the likelihood of podium-level outcomes at the opening event of the World Cup season.

The USA Cycling Sport Performance staff will be particularly interested in the following information (in no particular order):

- 2025 World Championships Podiums
- 2024 World Championships Podiums
- 2024 Paralympic Games Podiums

Nomination Date:      January 31, 2026

UCI World Cup #2	Middelkerke, BEL
UCI World Cup #3	Abbruzzo, ITA

EVENT SELECTION STRATEGY

For World Cups #2 and #3, USA Cycling will adopt a more expansive selection strategy designed to balance performance objectives with athlete development and international race exposure. Compared to World Cup #1, a slightly larger team will be selected, with the intent of providing additional athletes with meaningful experience in a World Cup environment while continuing to prioritize competitive readiness.

Selection decisions will be informed by a combination of early-season international performance indicators and key domestic benchmarks. While medal capability will remain an important consideration, increased emphasis will be placed on progression, consistency, and demonstrated readiness to compete effectively at the international level. This approach supports both short-term competitive outcomes and longer-term pipeline development.

Performance indicators considered (in no particular order):

- 2025 World Championships Podiums
- 2024 World Championships Podiums
- 2024 Paralympic Games Podiums
- World Cup #1 race performances
- Domestic race results from:
  - Valley of the Sun
  - The Swamp Classic
  - Victor Valley Omnium
  - Outdoor Capital Classic

USA Cycling Sport Performance staff will evaluate these data points holistically to assess athlete readiness, trajectory, and suitability for international competition. Final selections will reflect a balance between competitive performance, developmental opportunity, and responsible resource allocation.
