Individual Time Trial – Thursday

We will be starting the time trial as scheduled, with the first rider at 7:01:00.

Rain is currently predicted throughout the time trial. We will continue to monitor throughout the morning in case conditions worsen and will provide updates on-site as needed. A few key things to point out as it pertains to weather conditions during the time trial.

- If lightening is present within 10-miles of the venue, we will pause racing and not allow any additional riders to start. Once lightening has moved outside the 10-mile range, we will wait an additional 30-minutes before restarting the event.
- If we must pause racing, those riders who are currently on course should continue to ride in the direction of the course until they cross the finish line and receive their finish time OR are picked up by an event SAG and transported back to the starting area. Those riders who are transported back to the start will be given the option to re-start their time trial once racing commences.

An updated Time Trial Start List will be posted on the USA Cycling website this evening to account for the changes in bib numbers. It will have an updated date as of today, July 24 at 4:12 PM.

Call Up Lists

We had to reassign some bib numbers after the initial TT start list and call-up lists were posted. Updated call-up lists have been updated and reposted to the event's website.
